COVER LETTER

To whom it may concern

It is pleasure and privilege to be considered among many or few people for the job opportunity. I have no doubt that I am the best person for the job. I would like to start off by declaring that I am in no position to accept failure. My only goal is to be content and be successful in my attempts to get the job.

I have learned over the years that the only person that can define oneself is the person in the mirror. I am hardwired to think logically. My 12 years in school has taught me that emotions only give rise to failure and failure only gives rise to misery. To avoid such complications one must be diligent and focused at what he does. I have achieved many things during my 12 year period, from mathematics awards to being a leader among students. I have always had the unselfish behaviour to teach others who struggle with understanding the lessons.

After the hard lessons learned in school even harder lesson was awaiting me. My 3 years at college have proven that much. I had a choice to skip Electrical Engineering N1 but I remembered that it is important to learn the fundamentals. I began at N1 and finished until N3. During that time I became really good and even tutored my fellow peers at college. At times when you become good at something it can leave room for ignorance. I learned that the hard way. For the very first time I had failed a subject completely in N4. I did not know how to cope with failure and never gave up on trying passing again and again. Failure has taught me that no one will help you unless you help yourself. I passed N4 and eventually passed N5.

To this day those hard lessons have been hardwired into my mind. I have learned a lot from my failures and I have no intention to fail in the future. I declared at the beginning of this year that this is my year to compete and conquer. You ask why I am the best person for the job. It's because I have been through a lot of failures and have zero intention to fail again. One of my many goals for this year is to get a job and help serve my family and others who is in need of my services. "The ultimate measure of a man is not where he stands in moments of comfort and convenience, but where he stands at times of challenge and controversy.", a quote from Martin Luther King.

Kind Regard
